Accident Investigation

This course will assist those responsible for conducting accident and incident investigations. Investigations that are incomplete generally result in a recurrence of the accident or incident. Investigation reports are legal documents (W.S.I.B and O.H.S.A.) and must be completed carefully.

Participants will:

- Understand the legal requirements placed upon various workplace parties for conducting complete and thorough accident investigations.
- Become familiar with the losses associated with accidents including personal injuries, the impact on business, and the legal consequences.
- Understand that investigating incidents is important to prevent future losses from occurring.
- Learn how to use problem-solving tools to identify problems, collect and analyse data to determine immediate and root causes, and develop and implement action plans targeted towards preventing recurrences.
- Gathering evidence through witness interviews, photography, training records, and logs.
- Prepare reports using supplied forms by reviewing a video case study.

Method of Instruction: Interactive presentation, brief lecture, group discussions, individual and group exercises and videos.

Who Should Attend: Human Resources Managers, Managers, Supervisors, Leaders and Joint Health & Safety Committee Members
